4. You are negotiating terms with a supplier of a critical component in your manufacturing process. You receive 100 units monthly. Your project needs 150 units for the next 6 months and perhaps as many as 200 units ongoing after that. You've been satisfied with the supplier's quality, however there have been two occasions where late deliveries have forced overtime to meet customer commitments. An out-of-state vendor has offered you a 20% discount for the 200 units per month for a one-year contract. Analyse the power factors, set up your negotiation strategy, and walk through a scenario with your partners (observers). You have 10 minutes for each exercise then you will sum up your findings for the group.

Sebi Brings in Credit Risk-based Limits for MFs in Debt Investments

Our Bureau

Mumbai: The Securities and Exchange Board of India (Sebi) has introduced credit rating-based single-issuer limits for actively managed mutual fund schemes. The move is aimed at avoiding inconsistency in investment by mutual funds in debt instruments of an issuer, irrespective of the nature of a scheme's management, the regulator said.

Currently, credit risk-based single-issuer limits are allowed for debt exchange-traded funds to enable them to effectively manage the risk associated with such investments.

The regulator on Tuesday said a mutual fund scheme should not invest more than 10% of its net asset value (NAV) in debt and money market securities rated 'AAA' issued by a single issuer. While for companies rated 'AA', the exposure should not be more than 8% and the limit has been capped at 6% for 'A' and below-rated companies.

Fund houses may extend the investment limits by up to 2% of the NAV of the scheme with prior approval of the board of trustees and directors, Sebi said.

The long-term rating of issuers should be considered for the money market instruments. However, if there is no long-term rating available for the same issuer, then based on the mapping of credit assessors between short-term and long-term ratings, the most conservative long-term rating should be taken for a given short-term assessment of creditworthiness, the regulator said.

Exposure to government money market instruments such as G-Sec and T-bills should be treated as exposure to government securities, Sebi said. The new rule would be applicable for all the new schemes introduced now. Existing schemes should be grandfathered from these guidelines until the maturity of the underlying debt and money market securities, the regulator said.

MF schemes can't invest more than 10% of NAV in debt, money market securities rated 'AAA' issued by a single issuer

Mridula Ice Cream Parlour (A)

Frank D'Souza brooded over his glass of beer. The sun had set a while ago, but night had not yet fully descended; a pleasant sea-breeze was blowing and set his flamboyant half-opened shirt fluttering and from time to time he had to pull his flapping hat back into position. However, Frank was not in a mood to appreciate the pleasant surroundings. He was brooding over the fact that, at the end of the first month of operation, there was no money left in the cash box of Mridula Ice-Cream Parlour, which he owned.

Background

Frank D'Souza was the Sales Manager of a well-known company in Bombay which dealt in consumer goods. With his inherent persuasive powers, Frank D'Souza had made a name for himself not only in his own company, but also in the consumer circles where he was viewed as a very pleasant, jovial personality and was welcomed whenever he condescended to visit the offices of the more important clients. However, as the years went by, Frank D'Souza became more and more bored with his routine work.

Every year for the past few years he had spent his summer vacation at this coastal resort of Goa where he had watched the operations of large number of ice-cream vendors and the two ice-cream parlours along the beach. These parlours seemed to be doing roaring business during the vacation months which he spent at this resort. An idea germinated in Frank's fertile mind to get away from his routine job for considerable time intervals without too much sacrifice in income.

Frank studied the operations during the previous year and found out that he could rent out facilities to run a parlour for the summer season without any difficulty and that it would come fully equipped with the freezer for storing the ice-cream and all the required auxiliary equipments and furniture. Some of the ice-cream manufacturers would provide these on a rental basis. So he did not really have to put in any money in the form of capital expenditure. The ice-cream manufacturers also guaranteed a regular supply of the required ice-cream in bulk. His business would mainly be selling a ready-made product involving only packaging and delivering it to customers.

Frank decided to take the plunge. He persuaded the management of his company to give him four months' leave during the peak summer months without any pay. The management, though reluctant to do this, was also not willing to ask him to resign from the company.

Eventually it agreed that, on an experimental basis, he would be granted four months' leave this year. Frank took this leave, went to Goa, and set up the ice-cream parlour along the beach, quite close to the two existing parlours. He intended to run it at least for four months (April to July) of the peak summer season.

Pricing

Mridula ice-cream parlour sold ice-cream in five sizes, ranging from 50 g. cones to 1 kg. family pack in a carton. These were also the standard lines carried by his competitors. Since Frank had frequent discussions with the cost accountant of his company, he had a fairly good idea of how to cost a product, and felt confident to work out the costs of his five product lines. (Details of how Frank worked out the prices for each of the sizes are given in Exhibit 1.) Basically what Frank had done was that he took the estimated quantity of ice-cream to be sold in a month and arrived at a cost per kg. of ice-cream which he called the operating cost per kg. Then he arrived at the price for each size by adding up the purchase price of the ice-cream, the operating cost for that weight of ice-cream, and the container cost for each for each size; to this total he added a 10 per cent margin which would take care of any melting and serving loss of ice-cream and give a profit. This price was rounded off to the next 10 paise. As the prices calculated by Frank corresponded to the prices charged by his competitors, he was reassured about the cost calculations.

Frank had several competitors. As mentioned earlier, two of them were parlours like his own, while the others were essentially "street" vendors who carried their wares either in huge flasks or in small hand-carts. The prices charged by the street vendors were always lower than the prices charged by the parlours and the quality definitely inferior. Therefore, Frank was not worried about this class of competitors. He was really concerned about the prices charged by other ice-cream parlours, and, since his prices matched theirs, he was satisfied.

Mridula ice-cream parlour in its first month obtained the largest sales in terms of number of units, in the smallest size. This was the 50 g. cone priced at 80 paise by Frank. The next size was the larger scoop cone of 100 g. which he had priced at Rs.1.50. The majority of the customers for 80 paise cones were really young children who brought their parents or elder brothers or sisters with them to the parlour. Many times Frank had noticed that it seemed as if the family had come in to buy the youngest a cone, but at the spur of the moment decided to buy a family pack.

When Frank had thought up of taking this long summer vacation to run his outdoor ice-cream parlour on the beach, all he was really expecting to make was around Rs.2,000 per month. He needed that much to maintain himself in the style to which he was accustomed. The fact that there was no money left in the kitty after he had paid out the salaries for April to his counter-boys had provoked this black mood in Frank.

As he continued to brood, a friend, Mr. SK Banerjee, a practising chartered accountant from Bombay, who was also vacationing in Goa, joined him at his table. Suddenly an idea struck Frank; may be the way he had worked out costs for setting the prices was wrong. After all, any time he had any question on costs, as the sales manager of the Bombay company, he had always talked to the cost accountant of the company. So he thought he could enlist the help of his friend in checking whether the way he had calculated costs was right.

When Banerjee heard about Frank's travails he immediately saw through the problem. Banerjee thought that Frank should adopt an activity based costing (ABC), the rudiments of which were briefly explained to him. For example, Banerjee asserted that "packing" and "cash collection" were two distinct activities and were driven by different "cost drivers". Finding Frank quite confused by the technical jargon, Banerjee tried to explain the concept of ABC in simple terms. Frank was allocating costs to all sizes of ice-cream as a rate per kg of ice-cream; but this was not the way in which expenses were really incurred. Banerjee pointed out that the counter-boys who served the customers probably spent more or less the same amount of time to scoop ice-cream into the smallest cone or to pack a 1 kg. carton of ice-cream. In that case the number of units was the cost driver. Therefore, he wanted an estimate of how many units of each kind of ice-cream was sold during the month. Similarly the cashier may have taken the same amount of time in collecting money from a customer whether he bought one cone of ice-cream, several cones, 1kg of ice cream or a number of items put together, as such, the cost driver was number of transactions. So he also wanted a break-up of how many orders the parlour had received during the month to determine the number of cash transactions involved for each line. Frank could see his point and said he will try somehow to estimate the figures and provide them to Banerjee by next day.

The following day Frank was able to provide the figures. (see Exhibit 2.)

Based on the new information provided by Frank, Banerjee worked out the proper allocation of costs for each size of ice-cream and came up with new prices as shown in Exhibit 3. Banerjee allocated the counter-boys' salary based on the number of units, cashier's salary based on the number of orders (transactions), and the rest based on kg. sold in each category. Based on the revised cost calculation, Banerjee came up with the suggestion that the prices of the 50 g. and 100 g. cones should be raised by 10 paise each to 90 paise and Rs.1.60 respectively. Prices of the 250 g. and 500 g. sizes need not be changed; the price of the 1kg pack worked out to 20 paise less than the old price, but Banerjee suggested that this reduction need not be done. The main point was that the two smallest sizes were losing money at the rate of 10 paise per piece and this was the real reason why Frank was left without any money at the end of the month. And, lack of activity based costing (ABC) was the culprit.

As a matter of fact Banerjee also prepared an income statement for April (Exhibit 4). He showed that, though no money was left in the kitty, Frank had actually made a profit of Rs.568 after taxes which would have been considerably more had he sold the 50 and 100 g. cones at higher prices. Banerjee further suggested that Frank get rid off the cashier since he (Frank) himself could take care of this function. At that stage Frank blurted out, "I am the cashier". It transpired that what Frank had actually shown as cashier's salary was actually the money which he had taken from the cash box from time to time for his own expenses. However, Frank did not always remember to note down the amount he had been taking from the cash box.

The greater problem which faced Frank at the moment was that according to Banerjee's calculations he should charge a price higher than which he was charging now on two of his fast selling lines. Although during April the prices charged by Frank and his two competitors (ice-cream parlours) were identical. Frank had noticed during his earlier visits to Goa that the prices of the two old parlours used to see-saw -- sometimes one parlour charged less and at other times the other parlour charged less. Frank wondered whether the "see-saw price game" was to take away volumes from each other. If it was so, this would mean that if Frank raised his price while the other two parlours did not, probably Frank's sales would drop. On the other hand there was the possibility that Frank could try to influence the other two parlour owners to raise their prices also as he had heard that they were not doing as well this year compared to the previous years. There was also an alternate possibility that they might refuse to cooperate or even joint hands to squeeze Frank out of his business, by undercutting him. But the inherent danger in all of them raising prices was not lost on Frank, who, as a sales manager, knew that if people perceived prices as too high, they would be willing to compromise on quality and go in for a cheaper product, the street vendors' ice-cream in this case. He also wondered whether he should reduce his product lines, and concentrate on the most "profitable" ones.

Required: What prices should Frank D'Souza charge for various sizes of ice-creams?

Should he consider reducing his product lines? If so, which lines should he drop?

Subject: Organizing Programme under Y20 at your Esteemed Institution

Dear Spiritual Brother/Sister,

Kindly accept greetings of peace. You might be aware that Prajapita Brahma Kumaris Ishwariya Vishwa Vidyalaya (Brahma Kumaris in short) having its HQ at Mount Abu (Rajasthan) has been working over 8 decades for establishing a value-based society through its global network of 5000+ service centres spanning the 5 continents. In recognition of its selfless services, the institution has earned NGO membership of the United Nations and association with seven of its departments UNICEF, ECOSOC and UNEP.

The Youth Wing of Brahma Kumaris, functioning since 1985, works towards holistic development of youth by empowering them in living values and life skills through Rajyoga Meditation. It also gives them qualitative inputs and facilitates interactions on socio spiritual subjects through its volunteers' network. It also organizes campaigns, workshops, seminars and festivals from capitals to remote villages, at national to local levels. It has also worked on like-minded projects of Union and State governments.

The Youth Wing has collaborated with the Union Ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports to organize Y20 programme series under the theme – Health, Wellbeing and Sports: Agenda for Youth, all over India. The Y20 series of programmes will act a unique platform for youth to sensitize and educate themselves on the theme, and also be its flag bearers for the community.

Keeping in mind your inclination towards the above-mentioned objective, we cordially invite your good self to arrange a program at your esteemed institution at any suitable date.

Exact date and time can be mutually coordinated with the undersigned.

Looking forward to a positive response,

Thanking you,

In Service of Humanity

The Principal / Administrative Head
_____ College / Institution / Youth Club

Divine brother/sister,
Accept Godly greetings from Brahmakumaris!!

Subject: Permission to conduct workshop/focused group discussion on "Intergenerational Solidarity: Creating A World for all Ages" on the occasion of International youth day.

Ours is one of the largest international Socio-Spiritual networks in the world with over more than 4000 study centres in over 123 countries.

We are very thankful to you for the valuable cooperation in conducting various sessions successfully in your college/institute in the past. We have always received excellent positive response from students of your college/institute.

On the auspicious occasion of "Azadi ka Amrit Mahotsav" Government of India has initiated many programs. In this regard, Brahmakumaris also has initiated many projects and schemes which make India free from Fear, Corruption and crime and obtain the freedom in its true sense. Highlighting our age-old cultural and spiritual inheritance of "वसुधैव कुटुम्बकम्", the significance of Amrit Mahotsav lies in setting free the self from negativity and through creativity and positivity develop the quality of individual life. The energy of our positivity is the foundation of India's golden future.

Also Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) is the need of the day and to achieve this, world needs to leverage the full potential of all generations. Solidarity across generations is the key for it. We must foster successful and equitable intergenerational relations and partnership to ensure "no one is left behind". On this context, the objective of this year's International Youth Day theme, "Creating A World for all Ages (Intergeneration Solidarity)" is to amplify the message that action is needed across all generations to achieve the SDGs and leave no one behind.

It is the spirituality that gives a physical shape to ambition and thoughts and this brings the nation to a new and healthy position, and take the people in the new direction of Golden Era i.e. "Swarnim Bharat".

We would be grateful to you if you could give us permission to conduct "Creating A World for all Ages (Intergeneration Solidarity)" through workshop/focus group discussion / Lecture in your premises for 1 or 2 hours on any convenient dates between 6th August 2022 to 20th August 2022.

We request you to boost and cheer up the students to think big and explore their unique creativity. We are sure this workshop will spread positive energy among students. It will also lead students to think on social and eco-friendly behavior and culture.

Appeal:

You are kindly requested to communicate to the students/staff members about the program. This is an opportunity for all of us to encourage the youth for betterment of the nation.
